Trucks' Effects On Highways Should Be Studied Impartially

The nation's governors believe big trucks are seriously damaging U. S. highways. They blame "deliberate over-loading" for much of the harm.

At the recent governors' conference they got support for their views from Thomas MacDonald, U. S. Public Roads Commissioner. He has long charged the trucking industry with consciously violating state laws limiting truck loads.

This whole issue is confused by the conflicting claims of truckers and highway engineers. The Association of State Highway Officials recommended 18,000 pounds per axle as the safe weight for ordinary highway pavements (weight per axle is the critical figure).

But the truckers say the recommended limit is too low. They argue that poor engineering, weathering and other factors have more to do with highway damage than overloading.

Right now the U. S. Public Roads Bureau is conducting a series of such tests. Bureau officials insist they are strictly down the middle and have no wish to favor one side or the other in this dispute. But it isn't clear that the truckers will accept their tests as sufficiently impartial.

Yet, if they do not rate them satisfactory, it would seem fair from the public's standpoint that they devote their energies to arranging for suitable experiments.

And it would seem proper, too, that they wait until such tests have been made before lobbying in state after state for higher weight limits. Evidence is definite that truckers have already been successful in such a campaign in many states. It is hard to reconcile these activities with their expressed willingness to accept scientific, impartial findings on weight limits. What if sound tests show that 18,000 pounds per axle is a wise ceiling?

Furthermore, there can be no justification for any deliberate flouting of the load limits, as governor after governor has charged.

No one anywhere is questioning the role of the truck in the U. S. transportation economy. No one wants to rule it off the road—not even the big truck.

The average American, who probably drives a car and almost certainly pays some of the taxes that build U. S. highways, merely would like to be sure that his roads are not abused. He would like to feel that the highway laws in the 48 states reflect the scientific facts about highway damage.

Until those facts can be determined, all legislative action relating to weight limits ought to be suspended. This is MacDonald's advice to the governors, and also the urging of the Council of State Governments. Let's hope the truckers can join to create a united front of all parties concerned with highway safety and maintenance.

High Pressure Lobbying

Congress has been hearing some interesting testimony about the activities of the real estate lobby. The National Association of Real Estate Boards told a congressional committee that it was spending $130,000 a year in lobbying activities.

This figure seems small in terms of the active campaign the real estate people carry on. To this should be added the costs of the many full time or part-time employees who make it their business to attempt to thwart progressive housing legislation or to obtain repeal of laws now on the books.

One of the interesting revelations which turned up in the committee was in the form of a letter from the head of the real estate lobby to a state association president. This letter has been widely publicized—the writer said "I do not believe in democracy. I think it stinks."

The complete text of the letter was released by the committee and it said among other things: "I do not believe in democracy. I think it stinks. I believe in a republic operated by elected representatives who are permitted to do the job as the board of directors should. I don't think anybody except direct taxpayers should be allowed to vote."

"I don't believe women should be allowed to vote at all. Ever since they started, our public affairs have been in a worse mess than ever. . . . My personal contacts with the radio chains have been of great value. Also some of the favors we have had from other great associations, especially NAM, are matters which cannot be discussed but which have built up our organization in many ways."

There you have it: the real estate spokesman doesn't like democracy. He doesn't think women should vote and he doubtless loves the NAM—National Association of Manufacturers.

This real estate lobby bears watching 24 hours a day. The housing problem affects the laboring man and woman more than it does any other group in the economy. It is well that we know who our enemies are and what they stand for in these days of conflicting legislative efforts.

Two important propaganda allies of the Republican Party got into hot water with the House Special Committee on Lobbying this week.

Edward A. Rumely, executive secretary of the Committee for Constitutional Government, and Joseph P. Kamp, vice chairman of the Constitutional Educational League, both refused to turn over records subpoenaed by the lobby probers.

Kamp is under jail sentence for refusing to turn over his records to a House Elections Investigation Committee in 1944. Rumely, who was acquitted of contempt in a similar case in 1946, was sent to prison after World War I for violating the Trading With the Enemy Act. He was pardoned by President Coolidge.

Congressman Clarence Brown of Ohio, a Republican member of the Committee, angrily fought the attempt at the Committee hearing to get records which would show who finances these pro-Republican groups. Rumely and Kamp face possible contempt citations.

Voters Should Register

Although the increased registration in Oregon resulted in Democratic gains, many Republicans believe that the majority of Americans who are eligible to vote but who do not register and go to the polls are Republicans.

But regardless of which party benefits from increased registration, every patriotic American should be willing to work to obtain the largest possible vote in the important Congressional elections of this year, because suffrage is the bedrock foundation of our democracy.

I hope every Democrat will work untiringly to reach a minimum goal of 66 million of the 97 million potential voters of this nation going to the polls this November.

It is the patriotic duty of every American to work for a large vote. But to vote, citizens must register. Registration drives are the immediate job at hand and the Oregon formula shows how that job can be done successfully.

Both houses have voted for extension of rent control for at least six months and the voting showed what every previous vote on housing or rent control has shown—that the Republican Party is more interested in serving the real estate lobby than in serving the welfare of the people.

The Republican stand on rent control was dramatized in the Senate by the time-wasting, purposeless filibuster of Senator Cain, the Washington Republican who was elected partly through the campaign efforts of Senator Wayne Morse, the Oregon Republican who is campaigning for re-election as a "liberal" Republican. (He campaigned for Cain on the basis that Cain was a "liberal," too.) Senator Morse did not vote on rent control but he was paired AGAINST it.

In the Senate vote, 30 Democrats voted FOR rent control while 23 Republicans voted AGAINST rent control. Six Republicans voted for control and 5 Democrats voted against the extension.

In the House vote, 171 Democrats voted FOR rent control while 118 Republicans voted AGAINST the bill. Thirty Republicans voted for the bill and 45 Democrats opposed extension of controls.

Republican sentiment in the House was symbolized by Congressman Jesse P. Wolcott of Michigan. When the danger of mass evictions if rent control were to be ended too soon was raised, Congressman Wolcott said this was an argument for stopping rent control this June when the present law was due to expire. With sarcastic contempt for the problems of millions of tenants, this Republican friend of the real estate lobby remarked:

"I should think it would be much more pleasant sleeping on the grass in June than in the snow banks in December."

Millions of Americans will remember this Republican viewpoint, not in December, but one month earlier when they vote in the Congressional elections in November.

No responsible Republican Party leader believes, or contends, that President Truman committed American armed forces to the issue in Korea for the sake of domestic political advantage.

And it remains to be seen, of course, whether this act of affirmative leadership by the American President will win votes for his Democratic Party in the November elections. Perhaps it will have no effect at all.

But there can be no doubt that Mr. Truman's action has, in practice, upset the plans and calculations of the right wing of the Republican party and forced a hasty effort (A) to salvage something from the wreckage of strategies which now have become obsolete and (B) to devise some new vehicles for autumn campaigning. — Christian Science Monitor.

"Jumping Joe" McCarthy, as everyone knows, set out to smear the Truman Administration by wild charges about Communists in the State Department. His charges flopped, so Wherry rushed in to keep the game going by switching the talk to "perverts" in that department and other government agencies. Such perverts, he said, are "bad security risks."

Let's find out what makes supposedly sane men revel in filth and attempt to disgrace their country in the eyes of its own people and of the world.

"ME, TOO!"

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Life" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 16. The Golden Text is: "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" (Psalms 27:1).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "I command thee this day to love the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments and his statutes and his judgments; that thou mayest live and multiply; that thou mayest love the Lord thy God, and that thou mayest obey his voice, and that thou mayest cleave unto him: for he is thy life, and the length of thy days" (Deuteronomy 30:16, 20).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Life is divine Principle, Mind, Soul, Spirit. Life is without beginning and without end. Eternity, not time, expresses the thought of Life, and time is no part of eternity. One ceases in proportion as the other is recognized. Time is finite; eternity is forever infinite. Life is neither in nor of matter. What is termed matter is unknown to Spirit, which includes in itself all substance and is Life eternal" (p. 468).

(right), the traveler properly twists the fabric like a piece of taffy so that accordion pleats will stay crisp. Out of her tiny suitcase, she pulls the apricot and buffe jersanese ensembles shown (left).

Dressed up for town or travel she wears a short skirt, sleeveless blouse and rib-hugging jacket (upper left inset). Without the jacket and with the addition of a scenery and tradition Wilson points out, although it has some industry too. The farms are smaller and less productive than those in the north but, Wilson says, "what these rural Southern Hoosiers lack in profits they make up for in scenery."

Calling attention to picturesque Brown County, the author says it "preserves the aspect and atmosphere of Western pioneer life in America better than any other place I know."

He adds: "I doubt whether Americans can escape a stirring in their hearts as they travel through the county's settlement of Bear Blossom, Bear Wallow, Needmore and Gnow Bone."

In a review of Southern Indiana's colorful history, Wilson takes the reader on visits to Vincennes, Madison, Corydon, and New Harmony.

In conclusion, he says that the "homeliness and unpretentious hospitality" of Hoosier life is well-illustrated in a custom that now prevails in the Governor's mansion in Indianapolis.

Governor Schriener opens it to the public at certain hours—not to hold formal receptions but to say 'hello' to anyone who happens to drop in," Wilson writes. "If you should be passing by that way sometime, stop and shake the governor's hand. You will find yourself cordially welcomed, even if you aren't a Hoosier."

The Hoosier capital is covered in a story by Laura Owen Miller.

"Indianapolis manages to blend spanking modernity with its traditional flavor of an overgrown county seat," the magazine says.

JACOBS

Algiers, Indiana, and they say that Homer shook hands with a hundred thousand people which raises the question of when did he do any work, and that he "saw the new deal trend" although you may recall that in his debates with Yours Truly he romised not to vote to repeal any of the New Deal measures.

"The Story of Homer, Capehart" tells all about his family after it finishes telling of how he felt "wheat stubbles on his bare feet" when he was a little boy and how he wore "dungarees for the morning chores" although I was under the impression that dungarees was a term coined in World War II. We called them "overalls."

Then it brings Homer up to date by describing in detail his "up-turned smile" and glorifies him by saying he "teamed with the Bill Jenners and the Ralph Gategases and the Tom Baths and the Charley Hallecks" and the Hobart Creightons and other big guns in the Republican ranks.

But the real point is that the opulent Homer sends out this kind of campaign trash on his and Bill Jenner's frank and apparently there is nary a blush to crown the so-called "famous up-turned grin," which, were it a Democrat, would be a sin, but being Homer and the G.O.P., is as virtuous as anything could be.

'Modular System' Lowers Home Costs

"Modular system," a relatively new term often used in discussions of home building, means simply that architects, builders and material manufacturers have agreed on standardized measurements in order to gain greater production efficiency, explains American Builder magazine.

The basic measurement, or module, is 8 feet. Under the system, manufacturers make materials in dimensions that are multiples of this four-inch unit, and architects design buildings so that the modular-size materials will fit. Primary advantage of the modular system, American Builder says, is that it reduces cutting of materials on the job. This decreases building costs.

Hoosier Crops In Fine Shape

Good progress in all Hoosier farm crops was reported today in the Indianapolis Weather Bureau's weekly crop bulletin.

The best corn is four feet tall, and early-planted tomatoes are setting fruit, the bulletin said. Excessive rainfall and standing water in June left corn yellow in a few low spots, but the crop was mostly in good condition. Some fields were weedy.

Combining of wheat, which had a high moisture content, was reported in the South, and the Bureau said some oats were being cut for hay and others were ripening for grain.

"Gardens and truck crops are good," the bulletin said. "Soy beans are mostly good, but some fields are weedy. Some soybeans are still being planted. Tobacco is fair to good."

Weather during the past week has been favorable for hay, the report said, listing meadows and pastures as being in good condition.

This Way For The Circus

By BETTY BARCLAY

Circus time is here again and the children are happy and gay. They want to go, they should go. And after an afternoon at the "big tent," why not give them an informal party at home, where everything—and I do mean everything—can be prepared beforehand. Then you, too, can go to the circus.

The meat loaf we're suggesting can be prepared the day before and kept in the ice box until ready to use. The dainty bread and butter sandwiches can be prepared ahead and cut into fancy shapes and then carefully wrapped in waxed paper or a damp cloth. They also will keep well in the refrigerator. The celery curls, too, can be cleaned and cut the day or night before, and the ice cream made in advance and stored in your automatic refrigerator. As for the cookies, they can be baked several days ahead, that is if you can hide them from the family so they won't be eaten before the party.

Here is our suggested simple and nutritious menu for supper after the circus:

- Meat Loaf
- Bread and Butter Sandwiches
- Celery Curls
- Salted Peanuts
- Grape-Nuts Ice Cream*
- Circus Cookies*
- Chocolate Malted Milk*
- Grape-Nuts Ice Cream*
- 2 teaspoons gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 1/2 cup hot milk
- 1/2 cup sugar
- Dash of salt
- 2 cups light cream
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup Grape-Nuts
- Combine gelatin and cold water; mix well. Add hot milk to gelatin and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Dissolve sugar and salt in hot mixture. Add cream and vanilla.

Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator, setting control for coldest freezing temperature. When partially frozen, remove from tray and beat with rotary egg beater until fluffy and smooth. Fold in Grape-Nuts.

Return to tray and freeze 30 minutes longer; stir. Then freeze until firm. Freezing time: 3 to 4 hours. Makes 1 quart.

Circus Cookies*

- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 1/4 teaspoon soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 tablespoon ginger
- 1/2 cup molasses
- 6 tablespoons butter or other shortening
- 1/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1 1/2 cups 40% bran flakes or raisin bran

Sift flour once, measure, add soda, salt, and ginger, and sift again. Place molasses, shortening, and sugar in saucepan and cook gently 2 minutes; stir constantly. Cool to lukewarm. Add flakes and mix well. Then add flour mixture and mix thoroughly. Chill until firm enough to roll. Roll 1/4 inch thick on lightly floured waxed paper. Trace animals from a child's picture book. Transfer designs to heavy paper or cardboard and cut out. Coat dough lightly with flour; then place patterns on dough. Cut around each, using a small sharp knife. Remove the trimmings, cut the waxed paper between the cookies, and lift each piece of paper with cookie, turning cookie over onto greased baking sheet; remove paper. Decorate with colored sugars and candies, if desired, and bake in moderate oven (350° F) 10 minutes. Makes about 2 dozen cookies.

Chocolate Malted Milk*

- 1 1/2 tablespoons sweet cocoa mix
- 1 1/2 tablespoons malted milk powder
- 1 cup chilled milk

Combine cocoa mix and malted milk powder in a tall glass. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Blend well. Makes 1 serving.

Baking for Breakfast

By BETTY BARCLAY

Once upon a time everyone ate a good breakfast to start the day right. Lately it's been the fashion to skip this important meal—but that's not smart, say the nutritionists. So back to better breakfasts—something light but nutritious—full of flavor—good to eat!

And what could be better than a piping hot coffee cake—fresh out of the oven! Make it with Blue Bonnet Margarine—that's the margarine with flavor, nutrition, economy! With repeal of federal taxes on margarine July first, there'll be a reduction of ten cents a pound where yellow margarine is sold—one-quarter cent per pound on white margarine. Gone too are the license fees paid by retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers of margarine—so this nutritious food is more economical than ever. Use it as an ingredient and as a spread—it's good all ways.

- Feather Crunch Coffee Cake
- 2 cups sifted cake flour
- 2 1/2 teaspoons Cream of Tartar
- 1/2 teaspoon powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cups Blue Bonnet Margarine
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 egg, unbeaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1/4 cup margarine
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts

Sift together cake flour, baking powder and salt. Cream margarine. Add sugar gradually, creaming well. Add egg and beat well. Stir in vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Pour batter into 9-inch cake pan which has been greased with unsalted shortening. Top with mixture of brown sugar, margarine and chopped nuts. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 45 minutes. Serve hot in pie shaped wedges with plenty of margarine as a spread.

Outdoor Colors Brought Indoors

Start with the roof of your house to decorate your living room.

That's not so illogical as it sounds. In fact, it's the latest trend in interior decoration, as advanced by Beatrice West, New York color consultant and designer, who has planned color schemes for the exteriors or interiors, sometimes both, of more than 40,000 houses in all parts of the United States.

The trend is to let the exterior set the color theme for the interior. Miss West points out that parts of the outside of a house often can be seen from the inside, through big picture windows, and the inside is visible from the outside.

Her conclusion is that exterior and interior colors must harmonize to create a unified effect.

"In today's home, large glass areas invite the outdoors to move right inside with us. Color must move in, too," the designer says.

Starts With Exterior

Here's how Miss West goes about a color planning job. She starts with the exterior, picking the roof color first, then choosing all other exterior colors to harmonize with the roof. She always specifies asphalt roof shingles because of the wide selection of colors available.

One of her favorite tricks is to paint exterior window framing a vivid, attention-getting hue. This accents the softer colors used on larger areas.

The home illustrated here has a roof of gray-blended asphalt shingles. Gray-stained shingles were used for the sidewalls, except one end wall which is white brick. The trim is gray. Banana yellow is the accent color on the doorway and the window frame.

Interior colors were chosen as indicated by number on the sketch of the living room. No. 1 is ranch gray, 2 is geranium red, 3 is forest green, 4 is banana yellow, 5 is white brick, and 6 is natural pine with antiqued-gray finish.

Taking her cue from the shrubs, the lawn and the trees, Miss West selected forest green for the floor and the wall. To harmonize with the exterior of the house itself,

Above, living room decorated in harmony with color scheme on exterior of house, creating a unified appearance.

she specified antiqued-gray finish for the woodwork and ranch gray for the ceiling and the window framing.

Wife Continues Work

The rest of the colors were chosen, in accordance with Miss West's basic idea, by the wife of the family that bought the house. Continuing the blending of indoor colors with the asphalt shingle roof and exterior sidewalls, she bought ranch gray rugs and the gray chair in the left foreground.

Gray is the background color for the floral-design covering of the two matching chairs. The floral pattern itself is geranium red, forest green and banana yellow. Draperies also are banana yellow, making the indoor accent color the same as the one outdoors.

The brick fireplace was painted white to match the white brick end wall outside. The chair at the right rear is geranium red. All the geranium red coloring matches potted red geraniums kept on the terrace during the summer and brought indoors to stand on a table by the picture window during cold weather.

A HOME TO LIVE IN

DESIGN D-146. Beginning with one bedroom on the first floor, the versatility of this plan is shown by the provision for two bedrooms on the second floor and the possibility of adding a garage or bedroom on the rear of the first floor.

The first floor bedroom can be reached from both entrances and is therefore ideal for use as a den, study or office.

A separate dining room is shown but this can be converted into a combination living-dining room by leaving out the partition.

On the second floor two bedrooms are shown, with a rear dormer to clear the lavatory and closets.

Plans call for siding and asphalt shingles. Dimensions are 36 feet by 24 feet with a floor area of 864 square feet and cubage of 19,440 cubic feet.

Deed To Home Should Rest In Both Names

Joint Ownership Ends Risk Of Legal Tangle In Case of Death
"Have the title or deed to your home recorded jointly in the name of husband and wife. It's as important as life and fire insurance."

That is the advice of the Construction Research Bureau, national clearing house for building information, after conducting a survey among attorneys and mortgage lenders who have seen countless families suffer needlessly in case of death or of lawsuits over debt.

In most states, joint ownership is possible and in such cases husband and wife are called "tenants by entirety." If one dies, the other owns the house. No will, no estate administration and, in most states, no inheritance tax is required.

In Case Of Creditors
Furthermore, should one of the "tenants by entirety" be sued, creditors cannot take over the house, although in the half-dozen or so community property states, a widow might find herself half-owner of the home with creditors owing the other half.

The time to take the precaution of joint ownership is when the home is purchased. If the house is already owned in the husband's name alone, ownership can be changed by a new deed, but should the husband have debts, care must be taken that the change does not have the legal effect of a fraud upon creditors.

If a couple buys a house jointly before they are married, the subsequent wedding will not deed should be drawn of "John Doe and Mary Doe, his wife, as protect them. Therefore a new tenants by the entirety."

Wednesday night at 8 p.m. Mr. Albert Stewart of Purdue University is the Director of this chorus.

The Indiana State Society of Washington, D. C. will establish a central information bureau at the Congressional Hotel under the direction of Mrs. Esther Costa, Secretary. Mrs. Ralph Harvey, wife of Congressman Harvey, will head a group of Washington Hoosiers who will provide reception and informational service in all the hotels during the visit of the choruses.

On Thursday, July 11, the day preceding the concert, the Indiana Congressional delegation headed by Senator Capehart will join with the choral group and the Indiana Society in placing a marker on the Dan Voorhees Memorial Tree known as "The Tall Sycamore of the Wabash" which is just west of the capitol building. Following the tree marking the National Symphony Orchestra with Eugene Conley soloist and George Bolet pianist will give a "Pop" Concert at the famous Watergate Theatre Barge in honor of the ladies.

Governor Schriker and Secretary of Agriculture Brannan will be presented to the group during the evening.

Many of the Hoosiers have plans for sightseeing trips during their stay in Washington. General Lewis B. Hershey, President of the Indiana State Society and head of the U.S. Selective Service, will preside at the several group meeting to be held.

Flags Over Korea

With United Nations authorization for General MacArthur's troops to use the UN flag in South Korea, here is a line-up of the banners flying in that conflict. Flag makers were caught with their banners down as the UN acted following the disclosure that the UN had only 17 official copies of the blue and white emblem in stock.

UNITED NATIONS FLAG. Light blue, emblazoned in white with the UN's emblem of a world between olive branches.

SOUTH KOREAN FLAG. The red and blue circle and dashes, on white field, are replete with Oriental symbolism.

NORTH KOREAN FLAG. It's a red star—similar to Russia's—and banner on a yellow background.

Look For Leaks During Rains

Right now is an ideal time to find out whether the roof on the house leaks because spring and summer is a period when extremely heavy and violent rains occur.

During the next hard storm, the home-owner may go into the attic with a flashlight and carefully examine the underside of the roof and the rafters for traces of moisture. One should not wait until small leaks develop to the point where they damage ceilings and walls.

When a leak is discovered, it should be repaired immediately. Set a pan or bucket under it only until a roofer can make a permanent repair. Don't place a receptacle and then forget all about it. Water travels along a beam. A leak is not always exactly at the point where moisture is discovered. Trace it to its origin, and mark the spot.

Indians Still Regard U.S. With Suspicion

The Indian stated his case with a story.
"When I was a little boy," said Roy Jimerson of the Seneca, a Committee of the Senecas in New York, "my father had an ornery horse. One day my father asked me to feed the horse. The horse bit me."

"As long as we had that nag I was afraid he would bite me again. That's the way we Indians feel about the United States Government."

The Red Man, dressed in a blue suit with tie and sox to match, was testifying before a Senate Subcommittee on Interior and Insular Affairs. The issue was a bill which would allow the Indians to take over the job of collecting the money for leases on land they own—instead of letting the Federal Government do it.

The Indians object to the measure, already approved by the House, on grounds that there are loopholes which might allow the white man to come back and bite again.

Roy Jimerson was one of several spokesmen. He talked right back to Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, D. N. Y., and his committee.

"People claim," Jimerson said after receiving permission to stand instead of sit while he spoke his piece, "that the Government has been good to us. But look. They gave us attorneys. They promised us more money for our leases. Before we signed the last agreement we made $8,- 000 a year. The Government said we would make $10,000 on the new one. There was a slight error. We made $6,000. It was a contract. I challenge you to find one like it anywhere."

The committee began to squirm a little.

Jimerson described himself as a story-teller—and therefore historian.

"Let me tell you a story," he said. "Maybe it's a legend. But one day an Indian was sitting on the limb of a tree overhanging a river. It was his tree, on his own land, hanging over his river. A white man came along and sat on the limb—on the bank side. The white man said, 'move over.' The Indian moved. The white man asked him to move again. The limb broke, and the Indian went into the drink."

Jimerson said he wouldn't be surprised some day to find that the whole Seneca nation had gone ker-splash.

Actually, the measure is designed to give the Senecas a bigger part in their own affairs. But the Indians don't see it that way.

The witnesses argued that there are sleepers in the bill that would give Uncle Sam a firmer grip on the reservations. They object to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, under the Department of Interior, keeping all their records under lock and key. They don't like to be compelled to follow the law of New York State when they leave their land to outsiders.

There it Was—Right in The Middle!

Easy Roberts mowed his lawn early last Saturday. Then he sat on the porch, and watched Handy Peterson cutting his grass.

The Roberts' property and the Peterson's border each other—with no hedge or fence between them. So, when Easy notices Handy had left about a four-foot strip unmowed along the boundary, he walks over and asks why.

"That's your land," says Handy. "Mine ends here. See, it lines up with that oak tree across the road!" Easy didn't think so, so they went up and down looking for the surveyor's marker. Where did they find it? Right in the middle of their "no man's land!"

Well, they both grin and take turns finishing the job and then retreat to Easy's for a friendly glass of beer together. From where I sit, a little searching around for the truth of the matter often shows that the other fellow is as much right as you are—at which point the whole thing doesn't seem as important anyway.

Joe Marsh

Another Red Man who didn't see eye to eye with the Committee was Roy Jimerson's brother, Theodore. He's president of what is known as the New Government of the Seneca Nation.

"I've looked through the records," Theodore Jimerson said. "I know a thing or two about bills that go through Congress. You can grease 'em through, but you can't grease 'em out again very easy when they become law."

SPEEDS A NOTION INTO MOTION?

WHAT ELSE BUT THE TELEPHONE!

Just three quick telephone calls turn that morning idea into an afternoon of fun. Yes, and no matter what your idea is—luncheon, tea, bridge or club meeting—nothing gets a group together faster than your telephone.

What price such convenience? Less than 1¢ an hour!

What else gives so much to so many... for so little?

INDIANA BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

we MOVE MOUNTAINS to bring you electric service

Everyone knows electricity is about the cheapest thing a family buys. It looks even more like a bargain when you consider that mountains are moved to bring it to you... mountains of equipment, materials, supplies, moved from many sources to wherever they're needed to keep electricity coming constantly your way.

This company and the others in the American Gas and Electric System are spending nearly $130 each minute, night and day, for new plants and facilities alone—an investment of $340,000,000 during the 2,628,000 minutes in the five years between 1947 and '51!

But this spending for new construction accounts for only a portion of the mountains of things we buy. For day-to-day operating items we spend millions more. Last year Indiana & Michigan Electric Company paid $5,353,000 for coal, bought hundreds of miles of wire, forests of poles, gas and tires for 463 company vehicles, and large quantities of many other things.

And all this is money spent for tangible goods. Indiana & Michigan's annual operating payroll of $5,908,000 and taxes close to $6,252,000 are both outlays that contribute importantly to the communities we serve.

Lots of people benefit from this spending, but our customers most of all. At an average of less than 17 cents a day for all household uses, electricity is a bargain indeed.
